

Annwyl Gyd-Liferiŵyr · Dear Fellow Liverymen

An update from Master Jane Croad · September 2026

Bore da,

I do hope you have all had a lovely summer. Mine was restful and happy, which was just as well, because September arrived at a gallop. It has been a month of music, cricket, sheep, football and fellowship, with our wonderful Awards Celebration at the Senedd at its heart and a truly memorable North Wales weekend to finish. At every event I have had the chance to tell people about the good work of the Worshipful Livery Company of Wales in supporting young talented people, and it has been a joy to see how many already know of us, and how many more want to find out.

So, let me take you through the highlights.

“Supporting young talented people in Wales, and celebrating them together.”

EARLY SEPTEMBER

A Concert in the Making

September began with a meeting on Zoom with the Master of the Worshipful Company of Musicians, Alun Hughes, and Gareth Tresedar, our Silver Jubilee Development Award Winner. Gareth is a Swansea born composer and tenor, and he is using his award to bring the Welsh premiere of his Passiontide Oratorio, Dioddefaint Sant Mathew, to life. The work sets Matthew 27 in William Morgan's 1588 Welsh translation of the Bible, for tenor solo, piano and choir.

Gareth Tresedar, Silver Jubilee Development Award Winner

We met to agree how the Worshipful Livery Company of Wales will support the performance, which will take place on Saturday 13 March 2027 at Swansea Minster, St Mary's Square, Swansea SA1 3LP. The Master of the Musicians will invite several musicians and people from the music industry in London to attend. It is a very exciting project for Gareth, and a lovely example of collaboration between our two Livery Companies, as well as a wonderful opportunity to promote Gareth's work and the work of the WLCoW in nurturing talented young people. Do please put the date in your diary and come along to support this extraordinarily talented Award Winner.

SEPTEMBER

A Visit to Highgrove

Next came a delightful visit to Highgrove, near Tetbury in Gloucestershire, the private home of His Majesty The King. I was kindly invited by Jeff Edwards OBE to join the Mid Wales Bench Family and Friends on their visit. The gardens, which the King has shaped since 1980 on organic principles, are an inspiration. It was a lovely day, and another chance to build friendships and make connections, sharing the excellent work of the Livery in Wales.

In the gardens at Highgrove

Jeff Edwards will be our speaker on Wednesday 7 October at a joint meeting of the WLCoW and the High Sheriff of Mid Glamorgan, John Charles, marking 60 years since Aberfan. Please see the details under Looking Ahead.

MONDAY 7 SEPTEMBER

Lunch at the Honourable Artillery Company

David and I represented the Company at a lunch at the Honourable Artillery Company, at Armoury House on City Road. The HAC received its charter from Henry VIII in 1537 and is the oldest regiment in the British Army. Its home is a spectacular venue, set around the Artillery Garden, one of the oldest cricket grounds in London, and we were able to watch cricket outside before lunch.

Afterwards we were shown round the HAC museum, which is full of fascinating treasures. There were many people there and I had a real chance to tell them about the good work of the Worshipful Livery Company of Wales. Some were already aware of us, and several knew some of our Past Masters, which was lovely to hear.

WEDNESDAY 9 SEPTEMBER

City Hospice Lunch, Cardiff

Liveryman Spiro Borg kindly invited me to represent the Company at a City Hospice lunch at Cornerstone in Cardiff. You may remember that earlier in the year we were hosted at the House of Lords by Baroness Finlay of Llandaff, a founding member of City Hospice. City Hospice is a very worthwhile charity, providing much needed, kind, sensitive and professional care to people in Cardiff who are terminally ill, and to their families. I am delighted that our Country Night on Thursday 22 October at Cornerstone will be a joint fundraiser with City Hospice. You will find the poster, with details of how to book, at the end of this update. Please do come along and support it.

THURSDAY 10 SEPTEMBER

Mastering Diversity Conference

I was invited by Julia Reynolds, Partner and Head of the Cardiff office at Leigh Day and Vice President of the Cardiff and District Law Society, to attend the Mastering Diversity Conference at the Royal Welsh College of Music and Drama in Cardiff, where Liveryman Janey Howells OBE was one of the speakers. It was a very interesting day, and highlighted the real benefits of encouraging diversity in order to make the most of everyone's talents, here in Wales and far beyond. It sits very comfortably with our own aims as a Livery Company. Julia is kindly helping the Company to promote the Art, Law and Language Award in honour of Past Master Gillian Davies.

FRIDAY 11 TO SUNDAY 13 SEPTEMBER

A Weekend in Ireland

I then had a fun weekend away from Livery duties, popping over to Ireland on the ferry for some time to relax with friends and, of course, a glass of Guinness.

I am so blessed to have such a good, strong network of friends, and I love spending time with them. Being with like minded people who are so full of fun and great ideas reignites my energy and enthusiasm for all the projects and charities I am involved with.

Celebrating Welsh Achievement at the Senedd

This was the highlight of the month. Our Awards Celebration was once again hosted at the Senedd, thanks to the kind sponsorship of Darren Millar MS, who was very pleased to host such an incredible event for the second year and has confirmed he is willing to sponsor it again in 2027. My thanks go to Father Sebastian Jones, Joint Vice Chair of the Awards Committee, for arranging this with Darren Millar MS. Almost seventy people came together to celebrate our past and recent Award Winners, from college students and young farmers to Armed Forces personnel, a young doctor and a composer.

Angharad Lloyd Beynon, Joint Vice Chair of the Awards Committee, led the presentations bilingually, and every Award Winner spoke about what their award meant to them. Their presentations were exceptionally good. Angela Parry MBE has written a full report on the day, and I do hope many of you have read it and congratulated her. It is excellent.

I do hope all Liverymen appreciate just how much work goes into an event like this. Our Assistant Clerk Angela Parry MBE, my Steward Norma Jarboe OBE and Angharad Lloyd Beynon were extremely busy in the weeks beforehand, bringing the Award Winners together, inviting all the guests and arranging the day itself. I am incredibly grateful to all three of them.

It was a well attended event, but I must say, gently and sincerely, that it would have been so good if our Award Winners had seen more Liverymen there, especially those who had made the awards. I cannot stress enough how important these events are to our Award Winners, and how important they are in raising the profile of the great work the Company does. They strengthen our ties with schools, colleges and universities and with our other partner organisations, and the young people themselves benefit enormously from being there.

*Our Award Winners with the Master,
Liverymen and guests*

These events matter for recruitment too. Following the celebration, two people approached me to find out more about the Livery and about applying to become Liverymen. Please do come to the next one.

Sailing in Greece

I then had a wonderful few days sailing in Greece with my family. Time with my family is such a joy, especially in the sunshine. I appreciate how fortunate I am to have the support, love, care and great company of my family and friends.

THURSDAY 24 SEPTEMBER

Lunch with the Turners at Armourers' Hall

I attended the Worshipful Company of Turners' lunch at Armourers' Hall, 81 Coleman Street, in the City of London, and was warmly welcomed by the Master Turner, Joey Richardson. It was a very enjoyable event.

I met Lex Agathangelou, who serves in the Army Reserve and leads on collaboration with the Armed Forces for the Turners' Court. Lex has kindly agreed to work with our Awards Committee, exchanging ideas on how we can best support the Armed Forces further. Lex is also providing the details the Livery will need to sign the Armed Forces Covenant, and I will bring these to Court. Several Turners also asked about the work of the WLCOW, which was lovely to hear.

From there I caught the train from Euston to meet my husband David Protheroe and Court Assistant Keith Shankland, who had driven up to Wrexham ready for our North Wales weekend.

"Our North Wales Weekend of Fellowship, 25 to 27 September."

FRIDAY 25 SEPTEMBER

A Warm Welcome to Wrexham

On the Friday we met Tim Pike, Armed Forces Veterans' Champion for North Wales. I was lucky enough to meet Tim when we visited our affiliated ship, HMS Dragon, to learn more about the amazing work her crew do. Tim was exceptionally helpful in suggesting places to visit in and around Wrexham for our weekend, and our North Wales Committee were extraordinarily supportive and active in organising every part of it.

Everyone arrived by train and car, and a very happy, positive group of us met at The Turf, the famous pub beside the Racecourse Ground, before our tour of Wrexham AFC. Our guide was Mark Griffiths, the long serving stadium announcer and much loved "voice" of the club. Wrexham AFC was founded in 1864, which makes it the oldest club in Wales, and the Racecourse hosted Wales' very first home international, against Scotland, in 1877. It is recognised as the oldest international football stadium in the world still in use. In recent years, under the ownership of Ryan Reynolds and Rob McElhenney, the club has enjoyed a remarkable rise, with three promotions in a row.

Mark took us through the highs and lows of the club's long history with great passion. Our group generally enjoyed the tour enormously, although, it must be admitted, some rather more than others, especially when Mark went into considerable detail about particular matches, about which he is extraordinarily enthusiastic. It was great fun.

Fellowship Dinner at The Fat Boar

We then returned to our hotel, the Premier Inn, which was certainly chosen for convenience rather than style, before an informal Fellowship dinner at The Fat Boar in Wrexham. David Meredith-Jones very kindly brought along Lord Barry Jones and Lady Janet Jones, and we were delighted they could join us. Lord Jones was for many years

MP for Alyn and Deeside and later Chancellor of Glyndŵr University, now Wrexham University.

We recreated a photograph of Lord and Lady Jones with Past Master Dr Keith Williams and Janet Williams, reunited in Wrexham after 18 years. The last time they were all together here was at the solemn and important inauguration of Glyndŵr University, when the college became a university. It was a lovely moment and a very pleasurable evening.

SATURDAY 26 SEPTEMBER

Llangollen

After breakfast we were collected by Pat's Coaches and taken to the beautiful town of Llangollen, where our guide, Katie Crowther, gave us a fascinating tour. The town takes its name from Saint Collen, a monk said to have founded a church here in the seventh century, "llan" meaning a church or sacred enclosure. Katie took us through the town's development: the stone bridge over the River Dee, first built in the fourteenth century and counted among the Seven Wonders of Wales; the Llangollen Canal, fed by Thomas Telford's Horseshoe Falls; the railway, which arrived in the 1860s and is now a much loved heritage line; and the great aqueduct and viaduct nearby.

We ended the tour at the lovely Church of Saint Collen, the namesake of the town, with its magnificent carved oak roof. We then had time to enjoy Llangollen, and especially the River Dee, Afon Dyfrdwy, as it tumbles through the town. Llangollen is, of course, also home to the International Musical Eisteddfod, held here every summer since 1947.

Across the Pontcysyllte Aqueduct

Then it was on by coach to the Pontcysyllte Aqueduct, where we crossed by canal boat and enjoyed a picnic lunch. We raised a toast to its builders, the engineers Thomas Telford and William Jessop. Built between 1795 and 1805, the aqueduct carries the canal in a cast iron trough 38 metres above the River Dee, on eighteen slender stone piers, for just over 300 metres. It is still the highest canal aqueduct in the world, and in 2009 it became a UNESCO World Heritage Site, together with eleven miles of the canal. Crossing it, with the valley falling away beneath you, is quite unforgettable, and it was not hard to see why it is called the “stream in the sky”.

Saint Giles' Church, Wrexham

Back on Pat's Coaches, we headed to Saint Giles' Church in Wrexham, where we were given a very interesting tour by the Reverend Petra M. Goodband, Mission Hub Associate Priest. We were very lucky indeed, as Reverend Petra was so eloquent and informative, and it was her last tour before she moves to Llandrindod Wells.

Saint Giles' is one of the finest medieval churches in Wales. Its great tower, completed in the early sixteenth century and rising to around 135 feet, is one of the traditional Seven Wonders of Wales. Among the many points of interest Reverend Petra showed us was the tomb of Elihu Yale in the churchyard. Born in Boston in 1649 to a family with roots near Wrexham, Yale made his fortune with the East India Company in Madras, and his gift of books and goods to a college in Connecticut led to it being named Yale College, now Yale University. He died in 1721 and his epitaph begins "Born in America, in Europe bred, In Africa travell'd and in Asia wed." A replica of the Saint Giles' tower was even built at Yale University in his honour.

The beautiful stained glass

My thanks to Professor John Solbé for sharing his photographs of the church. John, a Trustee, and Dr Rosemary Solbé, Secretary and Trustee of the Friends of St Asaph Cathedral, met Reverend Petra again the following day, Sunday 27 September, at St Asaph Cathedral, when they all attended Choral Evensong and the installation of the Reverend Dr Emma Whittick as Archdeacon of Wrexham.

Black Tie Dinner at The Wrexham Hotel

After a chance to spruce up at the hotel, we went on to our black tie dinner at The Wrexham Hotel, organised entirely by our North Wales Committee. My thanks go to Noel Hulmston and David Meredith-Jones for a lovely evening of fellowship, and to Eurwen Hulmston for all her kindness, help and support.

Noel welcomed everyone and explained that, sadly, our guests from RAF Valley were unable to join us following an accident during a training flight, in which two pilots had to eject and were recovering in hospital. We send them our very best wishes for a full recovery.

David Meredith-Jones had invited our guest speaker, his former colleague His Honour Nic Parry, and introduced him warmly. Nic is the retired Crown Court judge who is also a much loved football commentator, with more than forty years of broadcasting in Welsh and English. He was extraordinarily entertaining about his experiences in both roles, while also reminding us of the great responsibility a judge carries. In 2025 Nic was appointed President of the Court and Chair of the Management Board of the National Eisteddfod. He is a fluent Welsh speaker and a passionate advocate of Welsh culture, and he said how pleased he was to join us. Professor John Solbé gave the vote of thanks.

His Honour Nic Parry entertaining us

I spoke to Nic about the Company giving an Eisteddfod Award, and I have arranged to meet him with David Meredith-Jones and Angharad Lloyd Beynon to agree the basis for an award that meets the Livery's criteria. Nic is very enthusiastic about the aims of the Livery and keen to support our work in nurturing talented young people.

Past Master Dr Keith Williams and Janet Williams had invited two guests from the Worshipful Company of Engineers, Richard and Janet Groome, who enjoyed the evening enormously. The dinner was supported by many members of the North Wales Committee, and it was a wonderful chance to meet new people and to enjoy the company of old friends.

Erddig and the Apple Festival

On the Sunday Pat's Coaches took us to Erddig, the National Trust house just outside Wrexham, on the day of its Apple Festival. The house was built in the 1680s and passed to the Yorke family in 1733, who lived there for nearly 250 years before Philip Yorke III gave it to the National Trust in 1973. The Yorkes are especially remembered for how they valued the people who worked for them. Generation after generation, they commissioned portraits of their servants, often with verses written about them, and later photographs too, so that the staff were very much seen as part of the family. Walking through the servants' hall and seeing their faces looking back at us was quite moving.

Driving Sheep across the Thames

Meanwhile in London, Past Master Derek Morgan was keen to take part in the Woolmen's Sheep Drive, held this year over Southwark Bridge. The event celebrates the ancient right of Freemen of the City of London to drive their sheep across the Thames without paying a toll, and raises money for charity. Happily, one of the contacts I have made during my year, Master Fan Maker Dinesh Naidu, very kindly welcomed Derek to join the Worshipful Company of Fan Makers in herding their sheep. Derek was welcomed by the Masters of the Feltmakers, Fan Makers and Lightmongers as he drove the sheep most ably across Southwark Bridge. He was delighted that his family could enjoy the day in London with him, and he has kindly shared some photographs for us all to enjoy.

Masters Together, and the Goldsmiths' Fair

I was off to London again to meet Richard Burge, Master of the Worshipful Company of World Traders, who has recently joined the Worshipful Livery Company of Wales and is waiting to be clothed. We were joined by several other Masters: Joey Richardson of the Turners, Christine Anderson of the Nurses, Liese Edgcumbe of the Gold and Silver Wyre Drawers, Jessica Alexander of the Furniture Makers, Nicole Brocklebank-Fowler of the Gunmakers, Elizabeth Walkinshaw of the Air Pilots and Justine McGuinness of the Communicators. We talked about our different experiences as Masters and discussed ideas for collaboration between our companies.

Erica is a Past Master of the Tin Plate Workers alias Wire Workers, the Plumbers and the Tax Advisers, and a Past Chairman of the Lady Masters' Association. Together we visited the Goldsmiths' Fair at Goldsmiths' Hall, a wonderful exhibition of artisan jewellery and silverware by 138 independent makers. I am now looking for opportunities for talented young Welsh jewellery makers to exhibit there next year.

With Heartfelt Thanks

It has been quite an active month after an enjoyable and restful summer. Thank you to all the Liverymen who have supported events this month and helped raise the profile of the Worshipful Livery Company of Wales.

I would like to thank Angela Parry MBE, as always, for her incredible work in supporting us all and keeping the good work of the Livery going. She is so helpful and so efficient. Thank you, Angela. I would also like to thank Dr Meirion Morgan, our relatively new Honorary Treasurer, who has worked hard to make a smooth changeover. I do hope he will be well supported by all the Livery in his good work.

"Please do try to join some of the events, it is such fun working together to support young talented people."
